

Andrea Baillo, PhD has over 2 years of experience in the cannabis Industry, 5 years in the beverage industry, and 6 years in cancer research. She holds a BA in Biology from Wayne State University and a PhD in Cancer Biology/Molecular Biology and Genetics from Wayne State University School of Medicine. She has multiple publications and presentations in related industries and recently filed her first patent. Dr. Baillo has extensive experience in laboratory start up, research and development, quality management, and analytical development. She is currently employed by Green Thumb Industries as the Director of Research and Development and Quality. She is focused on cannabis product development, product safety, emerging science and innovation, analytical development, and related regulations. She encourages the practice of making science-based decisions and brings science to the forefront of the design and implementation of R&D and quality programs. Dr. Baillo serves as a Producer in the Cannabis Subcommittee for the American Society for Testing and Materials.