

Matthew Edwards studied analytical chemistry at the University of Waterloo, Ontario, Canada, with particular emphasis on multidimensional separations. Matt remains based in Waterloo from where he operates the SepSolve Analytical Canadian laboratory. Matt also oversees the development of new markets and opportunities in the Americas, as well as providing technical and sales support for SepSolve Analytical and Markes International.